Research and Development under New Economic Regime

1364. SHRI NILOTPAL BASU:
SHRI DIPANKAR MUKHERJEE:

Will the Minister of SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY be pleased to state:

(a) whether attention of Government has been drawn to the press report dated 4th June, 1997 with the caption "R&D lags under the new economic regimes" appeared in the Hindu;

(b) if so, the reaction of Government thereto;

(c) since under the World Trade Organisation (WTO) dispension, issues relating to intellectual property rights (IPRs) are crucial to safe-guard national interests, whether CSIR laboratories have undertaken annual reviews of the intellectual property that had been licensed;

(d) whether CSIR has any mechanism to monitor transfer of technology and feedback from the end users; and

(e) what concrete steps Government propose to take for improvement of the situation?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY AND THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF POWER (SHRI YOGINDER K. ALAGH): (a) Yes Sir.

(b) There has been a marginal decline in official estimates of R&D expenditure . which refer to expenditure of R&D units registered with Department of Scientific & Industrial Research and expenditure incurred by Central and State Governments as a percentage of GNP from 0.93% in 1989-90 to 0.80% in 1995-96. However, in absolute terms the R&D expenditure has gone up substantially.

(c) and (d) Council of Scientific & Industrial Research (CSIR) is perhaps the first and the only organisation in India to formulate and publically announce its Intellectual Property Management Policy. CSIR laboratories are in the forefront of intellectual Property and Patents movement in the country and account for about 20—25% share of all the patents filed in India by Indians.

The laboratories monitor the performance of their licensees through Business Development Groups. CSIR have now set up a Customer Satisfaction Evaluation Cell to monitor the feed back from end users, perhaps a pioneering effort unmatched by any other Government Organisation.

(e) Does not arise.
